New Wage Ceiling Plan Expected; Beef Program To Remain

WASHINGTON, June 6—Economic Stabilizer Johnston said today that basic decisions for a new wage ceiling policy may be reached at a meeting between him and the Wage Stabilization Board today.

Johnston made the statement after a two-hour morning conference with the board in which he said he explored all angles of the wage ceiling problem. He added:

"We may arrive at some conclusions this afternoon."

Johnston is trying to work out with the board a new plan to replace the existing formula under which wage increases may be granted without board approval up to 10 percent above the level prevailing on Jan. 15, 1950.

Johnston had proposed a plan under which pay raises of about 12.5 percent since that date would be allowed.

This would be based on subsequent increases in the cost of living and on allowance for greater productivity for workers based on a pledge that no price increases would result.

Board members, however, are said to be inclined toward a plan which would permit cost-of-living pay raises since the date of the last work contract for individual labor groups, subject to some restrictions.

Under their approach, the productivity increase problem would be handled separately, but such pay raises would be allowed on a showing that no price increases would follow.

Indications are that the board will approve before Friday a four cents per hour pay raise for 335,000 General Motors employees based on greater output per worker realized through technological improvements.

Whether like increases for other auto manufacturing company workers will be approved is still undetermined.

The raise for General Motors workers is regarded as sure of approval because the company has stated that it will not result in higher prices for automobiles. Meanwhile, cattlemen who spent 90 minutes telling President Truman what they think of beef price controls were telling it to the Office of Price Stabilization today with charts and figures.

But if the attitude of Price Director Michael DiSalle is any indication, there'll be no change resulting from the beef conference.

DiSalle told newsmen that "apparently some cattlemen and feeders are withholding livestock from the market to see if the rollback will be rescinded. Well, it won't be."

The chief of the OPS meat division said that an order fixing dollar-and-cent ceilings on veal prices from slaughter to dinner table will be issued "toward the end of the month."

The official, Arval Erickson, said no controls will be placed on live calf prices although on May 15 they were 150 percent of parity.

A total 19 percent rollback in live cattle prices ordered by OPS has led to congressional threats to kill the control program, scattered beef shortages, lowered market receipts and worker layoffs by some packers who claim they cannot buy beef cattle under government ceilings.

Erickson refused to say whether veal prices will be rolled back or fixed at current levels, insisting that has not been decided yet by top agency officials.

Erickson was meeting today with western cattlemen led by Former Oklahoma Gov. Roy Turner.

Turner and other cattle producers, feeders and commission merchants were closeted late yesterday with President Truman and his top mobilization chiefs—Economic Stabilizer Wilson, Economic Stabilizer Johnston and DiSalle.

Turner told newsmen as he left the White House that everyone in his group is "willing to go along" with the government "on the best way to handle the problem."

Today Is Ted Lewis' Birthday

Bandmaster Ted Lewis, Circleville's most famous citizen, was observing his 61st birthday in his New York home Wednesday.

And he was receiving greetings from friends in Circleville. One of them was sent by Mayor Thurman I. Miller to Lewis, a lifetime honorary member of city council.

The musician's home address is 115 Central Park West, Apartment 3F, New York City.

Ohio's Bankers To Don Overalls

COLUMBUS, June 6—Ohio's bankers will find overalls and straw hats the proper apparel on June 20.

The bankers, their former customers and other guests will make a field trip that day. The bankers-turned-farmers for a day will visit the Ohio State university farm near Columbus as a part of a promotion series for better farm-bank relations.

The right front of the Congrove auto struck the left front of the Batavia car, officers said, causing both autos to swing about and smash each other side to side.

After crashing, the Congrove auto careened to the left to enter Route 159 while the Batavia auto crossed the road into the ditch.

The daughter received emergency treatment in Berger hospital for a fractured skull, fractured nose and lacerations of the face and neck. She was later transferred into the Columbus hospital.

Councilman Joe Brink suggested that a proposal put forth by City Solicitor George Gerhardt for hanging the map in a public place be adopted.

Gerhardt said he made the proposal because many persons have stopped him on the street to ask about it.

Councilman George Crites pointed out that there is only one map, that it would not do to have it "manhandled."

"But it could be put in a frame under glass and hung in the City Building," he added.

Council issued instructions to have this done.

AWAITING transportation to his base in Norfolk, Va., Navy sailor Tom Amburn expresses hope that additional leave will be given him to see his sweetheart, cancer-stricken Betty Thompson of Atlanta, Ga. Urging reporters to "please let us alone," Amburn said he had been given a 30-day leave to visit his stricken fiancée, only to have it cancelled when he visited his parents in Sioux Falls, S. D.

Hurts Fatal To Lass, 13

Manslaughter Rap Faces Toledown

A Toledo man was accused of manslaughter in Pickaway County Wednesday following the death of a 13-year-old Adelphi girl as the result of a traffic crash.

Myrtle Kathleen Congrove, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delta "William" Congrove of Adelphi, died at 4:55 p. m. Tuesday in Children's hospital, Columbus, of injuries suffered in a two-car crash early Tuesday at "Dead Man's Crossing" near Leistville.

She became Pickaway County's third 1951 traffic victim.

Mrs. Rosetta Congrove, her mother and driver of the auto in which the youngster was fatally injured, remained in critical condition Wednesday in Berger hospital.

The mother and daughter were critically injured at about 11 a. m. Tuesday at Routes 56 and 159 just west of Leistville.

FORMAL ACCUSATION of manslaughter was filed Wednesday afternoon in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root against James L. Batavia, 28, of Toledo, driver of the other auto involved in the fatal crash.

Officials said the Batavia auto was travelling south on Route 159 and the Congrove auto was travelling west toward Circleville on Route 56 when the crash occurred.

According to the officers, the Batavia auto had started into the intersection when the auto in which the mother and daughter were riding rounded a hilltop to cross the intersection.

"I know of no way to raise that money without a vote of the people on a levy outside the 10-mill limitation," he said, but added:

"It might be done by selling mortgage revenue bonds. But that would mean a raise in the sewage rate for everyone in the city."

Charles Graham, one of the signers of the petition, told council he understood that installation of sewers for the two streets were included in a $27,000 bond issue passed by council within the last year.

Councilman Ray Anderson replied that the original plans had included such an arrangement, but that plans had been changed after it was discovered that the North Court street sewer would be overloaded.

Another plan was made calling for a sewer line to be installed parallel to the Norfolk and Western Railway tracks. This plan called for construction of a lift station. The cost was estimated at $59,000.

Meanwhile, Anderson went on, the cost of installing a sewerage lift station over Hargus Creek on the Lancaster Pike had increased. The Hargus Creek lift station was the main

FANATICAL TEEN-AGERS FRONT COMMIE ASSAULT

UN Smashes Drive, Gains In North

Allies Hammering 'Iron Triangle'

TOKYO, June 6—Counter-attacking Chinese Reds, including many fanatical teen-agers, were hammered back by Allied troops with big casualties today in furious fighting south of the key hub of Kumhwa in Central North Korea.

United Nations assault columns then swept forward another 1,500 yards toward the pivotal rail-highway center while other Allied units carved out gains up to nearly two miles elsewhere along the Korean front.

A Wednesday night central front dispatch told of the grinding new UN advance northwest of Hwachon against "stiff opposition from Chinese battling to save Kumhwa," 18 miles north of Parallel 38.

The Allied forward movement, covered by deadly artillery and air barrages, was resumed after the bloody repulse of a Communist counter- on-slaught Wednesday morning.

The field dispatch quoted an Allied front line officer as saying that most of the attacking Chinese were "in their teens and without fear of death."

THE YOUNG FANATICS apparently had been thrown into battle with orders to stop at all costs the Allied push toward Kumhwa and the heart of North Korea's "iron triangle."

In the west, Allied columns rammed northward another 3,000 yards above Yonchon Wednesday after smashing within 12 miles of Chorwon, southwest peg of the triangular area containing vital roads and supplies.

Just east of that sector, however, UN forces were able to gain only 1,000 yards north of Yongpyong against what the Eighth Army's Wednesday night communique termed "heavy small arms fire" from Communist troops.

Only "light to moderate resistance," the bulletin said, (Continued on Page Two)

ACHESON EXPLAINS POLICY

U.S. Against It, But OKs Talk Of Red China Help

WASHINGTON, June 6—Secretary of State Dean Acheson denied today that by supporting a Korean cease fire proposal involving "discussion" of Formosa and a United Nations seat for Red China the U. S. had changed its policy.

The secretary, testifying for the fifth day in the Senate probe of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's dismissal, explained American backing of a cease fire plan proposed by the UN Good Offices Committee last January.

Acheson said the U. S. supported the plan because it meant that the U. S. still opposes, and will continue to oppose, Chinese Communist claims to Formosa and a UN seat and will not accept them as armistice terms.

Acheson declared:

"THERE IS NOTHING in our action to indicate that the United States changed its attitude on these problems in any way, or that it would change its attitude in any of the discussions, but it was considered, and I think soundly, that if the aggression ceased, these matters were the subject of discussion."

He stressed that the question of representation of China in the UN had been discussed before and that "there was no reason why it should not be discussed again after the aggression stopped."

It was the support of this resolution which caused some charges that the U. S. was engaging in "appeasement."

Acheson denied any suggestion that the U. S. "originated" the idea of a coalition with the Communists in China.

He said that ever since 1937 Chiang Kai-shek "had been taking the position that the solution of the difficulties between the Nationalist government and the Communists was a political problem and should be settled by political means."

The secretary testified that the Chinese Communists served notice last August that they were determined to "liberate" Formosa despite the presence of the U. S. Seventh Fleet.

ACHESON TOLD senators that in a message dated Aug. 24, 1950, Chinese Red Foreign Minister Chou En-lai branded the U. S. an "aggressor" for trying (Continued on Page Two)

DECLARING that the U. S. was unable to prevent the Communists from rising to power in China, Secretary of State Dean Acheson defends American policy in Asia as he testifies before the Joint Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committee in Washington.

School Chiefs Order Building Of Cafeteria

Circleville board of education Tuesday night took its first positive step toward establishing a school lunchroom program here.

The education panel Tuesday approved plans for the proposed cafeteria setup and ordered immediate action on remodeling so as to have the program in operation here next Fall.

Submitted by Architect F. F. Glass of Columbus, the plans call for alterations of the present kitchen setup in the first floor of the Corwin building, adjacent to the social rooms.

Glass told the board members that a portion of the present coal room adjoining the kitchen could be used in the plans for a scullery, still leaving adequate space for the furnace room.

In addition, the architect proposed that a small room to the north of the kitchen be used as a storage room, containing a "walk-in" refrigerator box for storage of perishables.

ANOTHER PART of the plan was for an electric steam table to be located in the hallway between the kitchen and the social rooms, so that the youngsters may pass the steam table with their trays and go immediately into the social rooms, which will serve as the dining rooms.

Glass said that, according to present estimates, a total of about 185 youngsters could be fed at one time.

Members of the board approved the plan submitted by Glass and instructed him to take immediate action to get the remodeling program underway.

Salesgirls Face Ban In Town

BELVIDERE, Ill., June 6—Door-to-door salesgirls dressed in low-cut dresses may have increased magazine reading in Belvidere, but the chances are good today that they won't be allowed to return.

A bevy of attractive girls donned their alluring dresses yesterday and sold a host of magazine subscriptions to appreciative males in this small Illinois town.

Not so happy, however, were owners of the local magazine stands. Cries of "unfair competition" were raised at a city council meeting, and the town attorney now is drafting a law to keep all door-to-door salespeople out of Belvidere.

MORE GUARDS TO BE CALLED

Radical Change In Army Training Problem Ahead

WASHINGTON, June 6—A new housecleaning in U. S. troop training is indicated today by Gen. J. Lawton Collins' remark that Army instruction is placing too much emphasis on frontal assault.

Effect of this statement seems likely to be as far-reaching as those initiated last winter when Gen. Mark W. Clark said the Army must cut down on luxuries to place more fighting men in the front lines.

Collins, Army chief of staff, returned to Washington yesterday after 10 days spent in reviewing the training being given American soldiers stationed in Germany and Austria.

The chief of staff first disclosed that "two or three" more National Guard divisions will be called up within the next year—his most definite statement so far on this point. He said:

"In our training, we are making too many frontal assaults. Casualties will always be higher in a frontal assault, and it is not sound tactics, unless absolutely necessary."

"THE EMPHASIS in our training should be to hold in front while we hit the enemy in the flanks and rear."

Clark, as chief of Army field forces responsible for training, will have the assignment to carry out Collins' instructions to de-emphasize frontal assault.

When Clark, in a similar off-hand statement, said the Army had too many luxuries, Collins backed a number of moves to cut down on service troops and emphasize the fighting man.

One of the moves was "Circular Number 10" which last February eliminated more than 600 non-combat jobs from each 18,000-man division.

Collins indicated that the calling up of more National Guard divisions will bring the Army to a peak strength of about 1,600,000 men—a figure he said will not be exceeded. The previously-planned peak strength was 1,550,000.

Collins said that two more U. S. divisions will be alerted within the next two months for movement to Europe to bring total U. S. strength in Germany to the planned level of six divisions sometime this Fall.

There were two divisions in Europe when Eisenhower's command was created, and two are now in process of movement.

Proposed City Zoning Law Is Enlarged To 32 Pages

Circleville city council Tuesday was presented with the second installment of an ordinance to divide the town into five zones.

The lawmakers were somewhat surprised. They apparently were under the impression that the entire ordinance had been presented to them last meeting.

After all, there were 19 pages to the first in the first installment. And now they were being handed 13 more.

The 13 pages cover unrestricted district regulations, non-conforming uses, exceptions to regulations, district boundaries, completion and restoration of existing buildings, certificates of occupancy and compliance, administrative officer, board of appeals, meetings, amendments, penalties and repeals.

Under certificates of occupancy and compliance the proposed ordinance states:

"No person shall occupy or permit the use of any building or premises or part thereof hereafter erected, altered or changed in use without obtaining a certificate of occupancy and compliance from the administrative officer."

The ordinance would make the city engineer the administrative officer. He would function under the city planning commission.

The ordinance would permit council to change the zoning law providing the change were first submitted to the planning commission for approval.

Council, however, could override the commission by an affirmative vote of three-fifths the full membership.

Penalty for violation of the zoning law would be not less than $25 nor more than $500.

Council instructed Clerk of Council Fred Nicholas to read the ordinance by title only. This was the second reading.

$2 - A - Year Sewer Rate Hike Being Pondered By Council

The possibility of increasing sewage rates in Circleville $2 per year was discussed Tuesday night by city council.

The subject came up following the reading of a petition requesting installation of sanitary sewers for Haywood avenue and York street. The petition was signed by residents of the two streets.

Following reading of the paper, Councilman George Crites stated that the cost of installing a sanitary sewer line to serve that area would be about $59,000.

"I know of no way to raise that money without a vote of the people on a levy outside the 10-mill limitation," he said, but added:

"It might be done by selling mortgage revenue bonds. But that would mean a raise in the sewage rate for everyone in the city."

Charles Graham, one of the signers of the petition, told council he understood that installation of sewers for the two streets were included in a $27,000 bond issue passed by council within the last year.

Councilman Ray Anderson replied that the original plans had included such an arrangement, but that plans had been changed after it was discovered that the North Court street sewer would be overloaded.

Another plan was made calling for a sewer line to be installed parallel to the Norfolk and Western Railway tracks. This plan called for construction of a lift station. The cost was estimated at $59,000.

Meanwhile, Anderson went on, the cost of installing a sewerage lift station over Hargus Creek on the Lancaster Pike had increased. The Hargus Creek lift station was the main reason for the $27,000 bond issue.

"And now," Anderson said, "we have the plans all ready for the sewer line to drain the north end. We're ready to go just as soon as someone explains how to get the $59,000."

Graham pointed out that Haywood avenue and York street are an old part of Circleville.

"But it seems as though that

House Taxation Panel Starting Vote On Bills

WASHINGTON, June 6—The House Ways and Means Committee will begin final voting today on its $7.2 billion tax increase bill and hopes to finish this week.

The proposals are designed to bring in an additional $7,188,044,000 of the $10 billion requested by President Truman.

The major revenue increases worked out by the committee are: individual income taxes, $2.89 billion; corporation income taxes, $2.08 billion; excess profits corporation taxes, $730 million; excise (consumer) taxes, $1 billion; including liquor, beer and wine, $250 million; cigarettes $177 million, and gasoline $210 million.

Tax boosts tentatively approved by the committee also include: Withholding tax on corporation and bank dividends and interest, $330 million; passenger cars, $196 million; trucks, $61 million; auto parts and accessories, $56 million; electric, gas and oil appliances, $20 million; jewelry, $38 million.

was experienced by other Allied assault forces east of Yongpyong in the west-central sector as they gouged out another 3,000-yard advance. There the Chinese were opposing the UN drive with some artillery fire.

New gains up to 3,000 yards also were made by UN troops attacking north-northeast and northeast of Yongpyong toward the base of Kumhwa, southeast point of the Chorwon-Kumhwa-Pyonggang triangle.

The Eighth Army communique said there was "little contact" with enemy forces above Yongpyong during the day.

Above Hwachon and north of the Hwachon reservoir, where the fighting has been fiercest in the last three days, Communist resistance "decreased" Wednesday, the latest communique said.

BUT THE STRUGGLE in that mountainous central front area remained grim and the Allied forces scored only "limited" gains toward Kumhwa from the southeast.

At the east end of the giant Hwachon hydroelectric pool, the Communists continued to offer "heavy" opposition north and northeast of Yanggu. Farther east, however, only "light" contact was made with the enemy north-northeast of Inje, the communique related.

Along the eastern seaboard, the bulletin added, Allied forces ran into "sporadic" North Korean mortar and small arms fire west-southwest of Kansong Wednesday after crushing three Red counterblows Tuesday.

In the west sector the Reds were slowly forced back by incessant Allied artillery, tank, small arms and aerial fire. But the enemy's fighting retreat was made to stronger defenses guarding the core of the Iron triangle.

Gunshot Victim Is Turned Over To U.S. Marshal

Robert Lee Reno, 22, of Florida, shot following a wild auto chase in Circleville two weeks ago, was released from Berger hospital Wednesday into the custody of Deputy U. S. Marshal Bob Young.

Police Chief William F. McCrady said the man, accused of auto larceny, was removed to Chillicothe, where he will be under guard in the future while recovering. Reno had advanced recently here to be able to move around on crutches.

The Florida man was shot in the left leg May 25 by Officer Carl Thompson after Reno and Farrel Dee Sublett, 33, of Morehead, Ky., fled in a stolen auto. Sublett also has been turned over to federal authorities.

U.S. Against It, But OKs Talk Of Red China Help

to "prevent with armed forces the liberation" of Formosa.

President Truman, when the U.S. intervened in Korea, ordered the Seventh Fleet to "neutralize" the Nationalist island stronghold.

Senate Armed Services Chairman Russell, (D) Ga., observed that nearly three months before they entered the Korean conflict the Chinese Reds had given warning that they would fight for Formosa. Acheson agreed that was true.

Acheson testified that the U.S. is helping the Chinese Nationalists achieve a "much better military posture" and declared "we are using our naval and air forces" to prevent Communist attack on Formosa.

The secretary was asked whether any steps are being taken to create liaison between Chiang Kai-shek and anti-Communist Chinese on the Red-held mainland.

He replied: "So far as I know our policy is that we have stated that Formosa should not be allowed to fall into the hands of hostile powers and we are using our naval and air forces to see that does not occur."

Highlights of Acheson's Tuesday testimony:

1. The U.S. should rally all free nations behind the American view that the Chinese Communist regime must not be permitted to "shoot its way into the U.N."

2. Should the U.S. find itself in a minority on seating Red China in the U.N, it should ask the world court to rule in advance on whether the American vote would be a veto.

3. The U.S., as the unified command in Korea, would have the right to take the initiative in pressing for an armistice, but would not do so without the closest consultation with other UN partners in the war.

4. MacArthur did not violate instructions in his advance to the Manchurian border as far as the secretary knows but, Acheson added, this is a military matter and "out of my field."

5. ACHESON SAID he hesitated to "place credence" in a claim by Sen. Brewster that the Chinese Nationalists inflicted 1,200,000 casualties on the Chinese Reds in three years.

6. The secretary disclosed that in proposing a "hot pursuit" policy for UN planes in Korea, the U.S. was warning the enemy against abuse of the Manchurian sanctuary.

7. Acheson declared that air operations against Manchuria, as proposed by MacArthur, would produce the "gravest risk" of extending war "throughout the world." He said "a catastrophe of that sort would be so terrible we cannot undertake that very great risk."

OPS Says Park Meter Change Is Illegal

COLUMBUS, June 6—The Office of Price Stabilization will "request" the city of Columbus to stop the use of half-hour parking meters in former one-hour parking zones.

The OPS contends the price is still a nickel for half the parking time and it amounts to a violation of price ceiling regulations. District Director Edward F. Wagner said:

"Net effect of our decision would be to ban establishment of half-hour parking zones, where one-hour zones have been in existence. However, we would not interfere with installation of parking meters in the areas where none had been in operation."

Wagner said parking meter regulation is a "service function, not a police or taxing power." City Attorney Richard W. Gordon challenged Wagner's statement, however, declaring:

"If OPS stoops so low as to meddle in the half-hour parking meter controversy, it is incumbent upon the city to test the constitutionality of OPS itself. Columbus is prepared to fight this move to usurp the powers and duties, all the way to the U. S. Supreme Court."

House Owned By Fire Chief Hit By Blaze

Circleville firemen were called out twice Tuesday to put out blazes in two city homes, one of them in a house owned by Fire Chief Talmer Wise.

First of the calls was made at about 4:30 p. m. to a house at Scioto and Huston streets recently purchased by James Ramsey.

Chief Wise said Ramsey had been cleaning up around his new house and was burning refuse in a side yard. The chief said sparks from the burning refuse apparently landed on the shingle roof of the house.

"He didn't notice the roof burning until it had a good start," Wise said. "The fire took off about half of the roof."

The chief estimated damage at several hundred dollars.

Second call came at about 9:15 p. m. in a house at 363 East Franklin street. The house is owned by Wise and occupied by Mark Chaffin.

Wise said a minor fire was started when clothing, either hanging on a light bulb or next to it, was ignited by heat from the bulb. Damage was light, the chief said.

4 More County Schools Schedule Driving Courses

Four more Pickaway County schools plan to have driver's training courses in operation next Fall, while three others also are considering the course.

County Superintendent George D. McDowell Wednesday reported that Williamsport, Monroe, Jackson and Darby schools definitely plan driver courses next Fall.

In addition, McDowell said Pickaway, New Holland and Atlanta schools also have shown interest in setting up the training course in their schools.

Teachers from the four schools planning to make the course a part of their curricula are scheduled to attend a special, concentrated instructor's course beginning June 18 in Dayton university. The course is concentrated into a five-day study for the instructors.

SUPERINTENDENT Jud Laman of Williamsport, Superintendent Bob Moyer of Jackson and Clyde Plant of Monroe are expected to take the special instructors' course and teach the subject next Fall in their respective schools.

McDowell said no one has been designated as teacher of the Darby course yet.

Addition of the four new schools in driver's training will mean that more than half of the county's 11 high schools will offer the course next year.

Ashville and Walnut schools instituted the course in their schools during the last year and plan to continue the course next year.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Director

Diplomatic observers throughout the world are seeking today to determine just what prompts the apparently firm conviction on the part of the British government that an early peace in Korea may be possible.

Official circles in London, obviously the foreign office itself, disclose that Britain's ambassador to Washington has been instructed to approach Secretary of State Dean Acheson and express the view that the time is ripe for a new peace approach.

But there are no signs of optimism in Washington.

There is one at the United Nations, where circles close to Secretary General Trygve Lie indicate that he now holds out little hope that the Communists would be willing to halt hostilities at the 38th Parallel.

And a study of all information available in Tokyo, nerve center of the Far East, brings to light no positive factors that would indicate a Communist disposition to sue for peace at the present time.

YET IN ADDITION to the foreign office, such sober publications as the London Times and London Telegraph seem to think there is hope.

"It would be hard," the Times said, "to imagine a more suitable moment for trying again to bring the Korean war to an end."

And the Telegraph declared: "It is quite probable that the Communists might be willing to accept a cease-fire."

The Conservative weekly publication, Time And Tide, has this to say:

"The defeat of the Chinese armies in Korea may provide the occasion for a new move by the 14 UN nations to re-establish peace."

Britain's attitude might be traced to one of two factors.

One is Secretary Lie's warning that additional troop reinforcements will be called for from UN countries unless the Communists give in. It is entirely likely that powerful new weapons short of atomic ones may yet be brought to bear against the Reds.

The other is the apparent fact that Britain has not suffered complete diplomatic and economic defeat on the explosive issue raised by Iran's announced determination to nationalize the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co.

HEAVY STRESS is placed by the British upon President Truman's action in addressing a message to Premier Mohammed Mossadeq of Iran urging negotiation of the dispute.

There is emphasis likewise upon the role played by U.S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady, the San Francisco lawyer and expert on international affairs, who has been acting as intermediary and seems to be achieving some success in a once apparently hopeless situation.

British diplomacy has made some mistakes, but it never has been entirely wrong on every facet of a given situation. The belief simply will not die in London that a road to Far Eastern peace can be found—and soon.

Service Sales Businesses Due For OPS Parley

Pickaway County businessmen affected by OPS Regulation 34, dealing with sellers of services, will be given an opportunity to find out next Monday just exactly what the regulation means to them.

H. S. Pettengill, OPS business analyst, will meet with businessmen from Pickaway, Ross and Fayette Counties at 2:30 p. m. Monday in Chillicothe to discuss the new regulation.

Roughly 100 Pickaway County businessmen are expected to be affected by the regulation, which deals with prices of labor in computing total cost to the customer.

The meeting is slated to be held in Worthington school in Chillicothe, sponsored by the Chillicothe Chamber of Commerce.

PURPOSE OF THE gathering will be to discuss the regulation which applies to such businesses as car washing establishments, beauty parlors, shoe shops, parking lots and nearly every business in which a service is offered for sale.

District OPS Director Edward F. Wagner of Columbus points out that some 10,000 businesses in the Central and Southeastern Ohio area which offer trade services are vitally affected by the regulation and that "this is an opportunity for Pickaway County sellers of service to become aware of what is expected of them in the fight against inflation."

Council Insists Police Tricycle Be Used, Orders Radio Unit For It

Circleville city council Tuesday authorized the safety director to purchase a two-way radio for installation on a three-wheel police motorcycle.

Safety Director Leist explained during a council recess that the radio already has been received.

Previously council had instructed him to cancel an order for it. He said that this had been done, but that it had been shipped anyway.

Although they grumbled at great length over the "slipshod way the police department is run," the city fathers decided that it would be "plain good business to go ahead and buy the radio."

THE LAWMAKERS made it plain, however, that they were authorizing purchase of the device only because they had been promised the motorcycle would be put to use on the streets once the radio has been installed.

The motor tricycle was originally purchased with the idea of using it to patrol parking meters. Since its purchase, however, council has complained that the vehicle has not been used enough.

THEY SIMPLY HATE WAR

RUSSIAN propagandists, including Stalin, have said that American soldiers in Korea don't know what they are fighting for. But they knew, well enough, in World War II when they were on Russia's side, said Stalin.

Now a survey by the New York Times education editor, Benjamin Fine, reports that few American soldiers know why they are in uniform. Does that vindicate Russia's propaganda claims?

Hardly in the sense the Communists are trying to put over. It is a safe bet that there has never been an army—unless it was out after loot or defending its own soil—in which a majority of the troops had a clear idea of what they were fighting for. In World War II, Russia's armies may not have understood it too well even when they were resisting an invader.

If they did, why was it necessary for the Kremlin to fill the ranks with political commissars to explain what it was all about—and incidentally to spy on any GI Ivans who might sound off against the official version?

Convincing accounts from trustworthy reporters in Korea say American troops in Korea do know what they are fighting for. Their gripes are against the "limited war" thesis.

The civilian can be comparatively objective in deciding what a war is about. He wasn't drafted against his will, taken far from home and friends, forced to perform distasteful tasks in obedience to orders barked at him with never a "please" to soften them, and finally sent to risk his life and kill foreigners in a welter of discomfort, blood, noise and terror. The man in uniform has the best reasons in the world to know that war doesn't make sense.

The whole problem needs more study, and Fine's survey may help. But a solution will not be easy.

Six years ago it was promised that the lights would be turned on all over the world, but Russia pulled the shades down.

Russian chemists claim to have invented a new line of perfumes. They should dump 'em all on Moscow. It stinks.

George E. Sokolsky's
These Days

Jim Farley, the genius who made Franklin D. Roosevelt President of the United States when most thought that Al Smith should have been nominated, has devoted himself to many causes since his retirement from active politics. He now comes up in a new role of adviser to students who want to reach the hearts and minds of men.

As an adviser to ambitious youth, James Aloysius Farley should be invaluable, because he has been very good at reaching the hearts, if not altogether the minds of men. Also he has risen to heights of position and affluence by his own means. He has managed to become one of the best liked of human beings, receiving unstinted applause when he appears in public, particularly among a galaxy of candidates for public office who cannot understand why the applause evades them.

The answer perhaps lies in this remarkable paragraph in a speech Jim delivered at Ithaca college. This chesterfieldian bit of wisdom is particularly pertinent at a time when both manners and morals seem to have suffered the onslaught of the vulgar. This is what Jim says:

"A person who is concerned in persuading other people to do something or buy something or just to be friendly and helpful must have what I shall call good manners. Now good manners is something more than knowing how to hold your soup spoon or how to dress when you go to a church wedding. It is much more than a capacity to say the pleasant but insincere thing. It is much more than mere tact. It is to feel and, above all, to show that you have a genuine concern in others.

Another paragraph in this speech could be read by President Harry Truman to his great personal advantage:

"What I mean is the manifestation in all outward dealings with the public of a calm and friendly disposition. This is especially true in politics. We have learned in that very complex art that the most certain way that a man can defeat himself is to get angry. People are not interested in other people's angers. Anger doesn't attract; it repels. It causes the victim to say and do things that he would not otherwise say and do. He loses his balance of judgment. He makes mistakes. He reveals defects in his own personality and in his own ideas."

Mr. Truman's great troubles — and the country's too—come from his temper which goes off like a fire-cracker on the Fourth of July. For instance, the very fatherly letter that he wrote to Paul Hume, the music critic, might, with better manners and a bit of humor, have been a classic of paternal solicitude. As it is, it was just a heated diatribe with a threat that is illegal as it was vulgar.

Perhaps, if Mr. Truman got Jim Farley to come back to Washington to teach him to count ten every time he is tempted to show them, the country would be happier and so might Mr. Truman be, unless losing his temper and exhibiting unfortunate manners are essential to his nature. If so, it is an unfortunate nature.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

McGANN tore through Lexington and Third Avenues against the lights, whining north in Second.

"He's caught a cab," Weston said, looking back as they turned.

"Bet the big slot never pays for it," McGann let the car out until it seemed to be traveling approximately six inches above the pavement. The lights of the following cab danced in his mirror now, two tiny bulbs down the black canyon.

"Railroad cop?" he asked.

"Now, East Fifty-First," Weston said.

The convertible shrieked as McGann braked and lurched east again. "Can't keep this up long," McGann said. "We'll pick up a radio car sure."

There was a chance that the pursuers had not seen where the darkened car turned off. McGann made the short run to Roosevelt Drive and doubled back. It was wide and smooth and they spun over it silently. "I'll always love Franklin for this roadbed," Weston said. "Plus the fact that he got reporters' police cards out of their shoes and back in their hats."

Two cars were speeding south in the next lane and just ahead of them. There was about sixty feet between them. McGann switched his lights on again and shot into the hole. The three sped along like innocent triplets. McGann turned the radio up in time to hear Farwell sign off and then he switched it to police short wave.

"... Lookout for a black limousine believed to contain four men armed with machine guns," the police announcer said. "No license number. These men are helping the escape of Dinkman 'Dink' Weston, wanted in connection..."

"Get WQXR," Weston said.

"Music to lam by. It's so restful," McGann clicked it off. There was no further sight of the taxicab and they continued south between their protective escorts. Once a radio car with its white-painted hood passed them going in the opposite direction and Weston slid down in the seat but it made no move to follow.

Off to their left the East River glittered darkly with lights from the Queens side and then they were passing the sprawling buildings of Stuyvesant Town. "Get down to South Street," Weston advised. "I know a place where we can reconnoiter."

McGann said, "Do they have a house rule against strangling nitwits?"

"All I can say is that going through O'Callahan's desk seemed like a good idea at the time. How'd I know the cleaning woman was a stool pigeon?"

They parked the car half a block away on South Street and went into a little restaurant near the Seamen's Institute. A couple of men in short jackets looked them over curiously and turned back to their coffee. There were half a dozen tables in the rear and at one a thin, lantern-jawed man had fallen asleep. His seaman's cap had slipped from his sandy hair.

They picked a table as far away from him as possible and after a while the waiter walked over.

What'll it be?"

"Two coffees," McGann said. When they were brought he eyed Weston sternly. "I hope you were worth rescuing."

"Smartest investment you ever made," the reporter said. He pulled a soiled envelope from his pocket and began studying the chicken tracks scrawled across it.

"Six months ago," he translated, "the Stanton dame passed out in a West Side fleabag. Tompkins' name and number were in her purse. The manager smelled dough and called Ronnie without notifying anybody else. Tompkins hushed it up and had her straightened out at an upstate sanitarium."

"Her first trouble with drugs?"

"Yes. When the stunt about her murder came out in the papers the manager told the beat cop on a promise that there wouldn't be any trouble. He was allowed to make an unofficial statement."

"He would have been a sad sack if she had died then," McGann said. "The narcotics boys like a chance to question them on their source of supply."

"Bet that gets them a lot."

"It doesn't work very often," McGann admitted. "In the back of addicts' minds is always the thought that they might want to start up again and they don't want to cut themselves off for good. They usually say they meet a guy named Joe on a corner somewhere."

"Stanton was never even questioned."

"And of course she wasn't cured, either. Probably walked out as soon as she felt better."

"I don't know," Weston said. "That was the best thing I found in O'Callahan's desk, next to a picture of a babe in a bathing suit and a ticket to the Irish sweepstakes. It was signed 'Manhattan Mabel.'"

"The sweepstakes ticket?"

"No, the picture."

"Good night," McGann said. "No wonder he sent out an alarm for you." He was really startled.

"You're hotter than a two-bit meerschaum. I hope you didn't take them."

The reporter grinned crookedly. "I wouldn't do a thing like that. I just fixed Mabel up with a goatie. It gave her a lot more character."

McGann looked apprehensively toward the door. "Then he hides in the information booth at Grand Central," he said. "Why didn't you try climbing a lamppost in Times Square?"

"If you'd stay in your office and work once in a while I'd have been all right," Weston said. "I was looking around for you when I stirred up the law."

McGann shook his head and hauled out the notebook, dipping through it to the middle. "If they catch you we'll plead that it's a case of where the mind leaves the body." He turned back a page.

"I want to find Ambrose Pearson."

"He's in Jamaica. What do you want him for?"

McGann explained about the record, with which the butler apparently had disappeared. "He was in town late yesterday so maybe he didn't go back. I'd hate to drive all the way out there unless I had to."

Weston suggested a telephone check and offered the information that Pearson had a brother named Otto in Jamaica. "He used to bend my ear about what a no-good Otto was but he probably moved in with him when they had to leave Ronnie's."

McGann asked for a Queens telephone book and the waiter dug a dog-eared copy out of a cabinet. They found O. A. Pearson, Oscar Pearson and Otto Pearson. McGann copied the number and called it from the booth in the rear.

A man answered in a voice which indicated what he thought of being awakened at a quarter to three. "Ambrose ain't here," he growled, "and it's a fine time to be calling up."

McGann spoke rapidly to forestall a banging receiver. "I'm calling for Attorney Holton," he said. "I know it's late but we just found out that Mr. Tompkins wanted to leave some money to Ambrose's relatives, too. I have to reach him to get all their names."

When the man at the other end had had time to recover, he sounded considerably mollified. "Well, you can start with Otto, his brother," he said. "That's me."

"Really? Congratulations!"

"How much is it?"

"How much? Why, we're not sure just yet. Where did you say Ambrose is?"

Otto gave an address on Perry Street in Greenwich Village. "It's my sister's," he said. "Louella. Put her down, too." He paused. "If you want me to, I can come in right now."

"That won't be necessary," McGann said. "We'll send out an armored truck at dawn."

He hung up and went back to the table. "Ambrose stayed over," he said, and explained what he had learned. "We'd better get over there. I'm just hoping that record's still in one piece."

Weston was wide-eyed. "You mean Pearson might smash it? What's so important about it?"

McGann pushed back his chair. "It'll be more helpful than vital," he said. "I just expect it to corroborate something I've got in mind."

"You're so clear," Weston complained. "I suppose this stuff I found out doesn't matter again. It's only my neck."

"No, it fits in very nicely. Very nicely. It probably will win you your Junior G-Man badge."

"That's more like it. If you'd pulled that 'never thought much of it anyway' gag I'd have slugged you."

"You might as well," McGann said, thinking of Hunyak, "everybody else has."

McGann paid for the coffee and they stood just outside the door for a minute, casing the street. The waiter walked over and kicked the chair of the sleeping seaman. "C'mon, George," he ordered. "You're due on board."

"That guy sailed before his ship," Weston observed. "I want him on the bridge of my yacht next time I go around the Horn."

McGann seemed satisfied about the situation in the street. "Let's go."

But the college draft policy is now clear cut. Those who stand in the top third in the examination now being checked have as splendid an opportunity to be drafted by their local draft board as those in the bottom third.

Some wonder why the examination was held at all if the local boards don't have to be guided by the results. The answer is a fellow always likes to know whether he's being taken because he's extra smart or extra unsmart and now he'll know.

Some say the draft calls will continue small though if the war in Korea ends and if we don't get into trouble in Iran and if Eisenhower can find anybody in Europe willing to fight for Europe and if we don't try to staff, finance and run the world and if it doesn't rain.

Editors' Roundtable

"Editors' Roundtable" is a twice-a-week release based on a study of an average of about 150 daily newspaper editorial pages. The major issue of the day is analyzed and digested, passed on to readers as a survey of opinion from the nation's leading editors. It is the "voice of the press."

UMT PROSPECTS

Most editors continue to favor the maintenance of a reserve of military manpower by a Universal Military Training program, to become effective when the need for the draft ends or declines. Some editors continue to argue that UMT is unnecessary and against American traditions.—To a very large minority of editors the Senate-House conference provision, now approved by the Senate, for a commission to draw up a UMT plan is an acceptance of the principle, promising Congressional approval of UMT. But majority opinion is that provision for "another commission" is just another postponement of the issue, offering little or no promise of UMT.

DAYTON News (Ind.-Dem.):

"Before UMT can be placed in effect, plans will have to be drawn by a commission appointed by the President, and then the plans will have to be passed on in detail by both houses of Congress. We may well be facing, when the time comes, another Great Debate. But Congress, to an extent, has committed itself to UMT in principle, and it has set up machinery which in the view of Sen. Russell, level-headed chairman of the Senate Armed Services committee, could, if worked properly, give us a going program by the end of the year."

WASHINGTON Star (Ind.):

"The idea of setting up another commission to study so well-studied a subject as universal military training is a stalling device and nothing more. After mulling over the matter for four months, the commission would be required to submit specific legislative proposals to Congress. Thus, the compromise puts Congress in the absurd position of passing a bill to require Congress to act on UMT at a future date. . . . However, there seems to be no chance of forthright action by Congress now, so the compromise is better than no action at all or outright rejection of UMT."

ATLANTA Journal (Dem):

"So many commissions have already reported, and the matter has been debated so thoroughly that Congress might well have taken the final action now instead of later. However, Senator Russell, . . . and Congressmen Vinson, Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, take an optimistic view. . . . They played major roles in shaping the new bill. They will have a strong voice in seeing that subsequent legislative steps are taken in accordance with its provisions. That . . . is our best indication that the measure may work out well."

ST. PAUL Pioneer Press (Ind.):

"Since UMT can not go into effect in full force until the Korean emergency is over, and will have to be worked into the draft system gradually, the four months delay will make no great difference, but the postponement does show how painful it is for Congress to put itself on record for UMT. . . . The congressional armed forces committees could have done the job delegated to this commission had they wanted to do so. . . . Maybe they are hoping for a miracle between now and next fall and that all those bad, bad men over beyond the iron curtain will just fade away."

ATLANTA Constitution (Dem.):

"Unless world tension increases, or unless a general war breaks out, there is hope UMT can be instituted sometime within a year or so. . . . The commission's proposals will enjoy privileged status and can be brought up for action on the mo-

Solon Declares Air Crews Set To A-Bomb Reds

WASHINGTON, June 6 — A congressional leader said today that U. S. air crews are standing by with orders to atom-bomb Russia immediately in the event Soviet forces launch an attack in Europe.

Rep. Cannon, (D) Mo., asserted that the crews and planes have been selected and the Air force is under orders to strike at certain designated targets in the USSR.

Cannon, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, stated that the A-bomb attack will be made only in the event Russia begins hostilities. The Missouri congressman declared:

"Thirty-six hours after Russia moves her divisions against Western Europe, every city in the Soviet Union with a concentration of troops or war potential will be blasted by American planes carrying atom bombs."

"The crews have been picked, the planes are ready, the propellers are practically turning, just waiting for the word that the Russians have attacked."

A corpse came to life in Circleville city council Tuesday.

His colleagues let it go as a "first reading."

VanCamp Road Bids Are Low

George W. VanCamp, Circleville contractor, was low bidder Tuesday on two state highway department projects to repave a total of 30.31 miles of road in Pickaway County.

According to the highway department, VanCamp bid $24,781 on 11.43 miles of State Route 674 in Washington, Walnut and Madison Townships; and $21,120 on 8.88 miles of State Route 316 in Scioto, Muhlenberg and Monroe Townships.

Cross Petition Filed By Wife In Divorce Suit

An answer and cross petition has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court by Vista S. Redman in a divorce suit started by Robert N. Redman.

The couple was married Jan. 17, 1921, in Circleville. They have nine children, of whom three are residing with the wife and one with the husband.

Both husband and wife accuse each other of extreme cruelty. Each claims the other has a violent temper. Each claims affected health as a result of domestic disharmony.

In her cross-petition the wife asks that the divorce be granted to her, that she be granted custody of the three children, and for a restraining order to keep the husband from molesting her, coming about the residence and from selling or encumbering any of their property.

She also asks for permanent and temporary alimony and for an entire interest in their real and personal property.

In his petition, filed last April, the husband also asks for the divorce, for a restraining order against the wife and for custody of the children.

Local Educators Set Sept. 10 As Date To Open Schools Here

Circleville schools will open their 1951-52 academic year on Sept. 10.

Next year's calendar for the city schools with that opening date and June 2, 1952, as final day of school was approved Tuesday night by the city board of education.

Board Member Jim Smith, in first reading of the 1951-52 school calendar, objected to the early opening date, proposing that school open Sept. 17 instead.

Smith, operator of a local cannery, said the early opening date would interfere with his cannery and with other seasonal businesses which employ school-age youngsters.

Bypassing action on the schedule during its last meeting, the board agreed to let the decision rest with the boards of education of Wayne, Washington and Circleville Townships, whose farm youngsters attend school here.

Superintendent Frank Fischer Tuesday told the board that the other boards had been consulted.

"THEY WANT school to open Sept. 4," Fischer reported.

Smith gave up, joined other board members in answering "yes" to the original Sept. 10 opening.

Next year's school calendar is set up to contain 178 days of actual school and four legal school holidays.

First vacation from classes for the youngsters in the city system will be Thursday afternoon and Friday of Pumpkin Show week, Oct. 18 and 19. The youngsters will be given another day of vacation Oct. 26 when their teachers will be permitted to attend the annual institute.

Next vacation from school chores will be Thanksgiving vacation Nov. 22 and 23, while school will be dismissed Dec. 21 for the Christmas holiday.

First Physical Education Plant Plans Detailed

Preliminary plans for the proposed new $475,000 physical education plant were submitted before Circleville board of education Tuesday night.

F. F. Glass of Columbus, architect for the city board, showed preliminary sketches of the proposed new plant, which is to be located on East Mill street, just north of the present high school.

On request by the board, the architect estimated that he may have final plans and specifications ready for bidding on the new building within the next 60 days.

Meanwhile, another of the properties on which the new plant is to be located has been purchased by the board.

President Carl Leist said the board has purchased the Mae Madden property on East Mill street for $6,000, the second of the five properties necessary for the board to obtain in clearing its building site.

LEIST ADDED that the board has agreed upon terms for purchase of the Eccard property, which negotiation is expected to be completed Thursday, and the Howard property, to be purchased in the near future.

First of the properties purchased by the board was the Mrs. C. O. Kerns property, sold to the board at $5,000.

Lone property as yet unobtainable by the board is the Curl property. The board Tuesday agreed to continue dickering for the site following a statement of value submitted by Owner Lawrence Curl Jr., who asks $12,000 for his property.

After purchasing the properties, the board will be required to place the houses up for public auction and the new purchasers will have to remove the houses before building can begin.

Two Waterworks Bills Given OK By City Council

Circleville city council Tuesday passed two money bills.

The city fathers passed an ordinance appropriating $750 from the waterworks operating fund to a fund for the purchase of new water meters.

They also passed a bill appropriating $24,500 from the waterworks operating fund for a contract for a water line crossing the Scioto River.

The contract was awarded to C. F. Repligle, local contractor, who was low bidder on the project.

An ordinance waiving the payment of tapping fees for a sanitary sewer on property owned by Chester A. and Irene D. Blue was read for the first time.

The Blues furnished material for installation of a sanitary sewer in an alley at the east end of Seyfert Addition.

THE SEWER BEGINS about 25 feet south of the south line of Seyfert avenue and runs about 112 feet south, connecting with a city-owned sewer in the alley between Seyfert Addition and Collins Court.

City council adopted a resolution authorizing the service director to connect eight-inch sanitary and storm sewers in the Bexley Addition to the city sewer system.

Mrs. Goodchild won the title by the flip of a coin.

MRS. MERRITT SAYS NAGGING ACHES AND PAINS LEFT HER AFTER TAKING HADACOL

HADACOL Relieves Nagging Aches and Pains When Due to Deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron

Mrs. Louise Merritt of Earlring, West Virginia, suffered from nagging aches and pains, a poor appetite and a tired run-down feeling which can be caused by a lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron and the pains bothered her so that she was unable to do much house work. But let Mrs. Merritt tell you her story in her own words:

Louise Merritt

"I am 27 years old, married, and I am a housewife. Before I started taking HADACOL, I didn't have any appetite. I felt tired all the time and I suffered from nagging aches and pains, and I was unable to do much house work. Now I am on my 4th bottle of HADACOL and I am eating well and the nagging aches and pains and tired feeling have all left me. I was also underweight before taking HADACOL. Now I have gained a few pounds. I intend to continue taking HADACOL."

Yes, now Mrs. Merritt is able to enjoy life once again. HADACOL now makes it possible to actually relieve the REAL CAUSE of those nagging aches and pains when due to the lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron in the system.

AND LISTEN TO THIS! Continued use of this great HADACOL not only gives continuous complete relief but helps keep such painful distress from returning when caused by such deficiencies. Now that's the kind of product you have been waiting for. That's the kind you should buy and start taking at once.

And HADACOL's wonderful Vitamins and Minerals come in special pleasant liquid form so they are quickly absorbed and assimilated in the blood, ready to go to work at once.

HADACOL IS SO EFFECTIVE.

Because HADACOL helps build up the hemoglobin content of your blood (when Iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every organ and to every part of your body.

You may have tried other Vitamin preparations or other Vitamin and Mineral preparations, so we make you this offer. Try a bottle of HADACOL today. You be the judge. If you do not believe that HADACOL is the best Vitamin and Mineral preparation you have ever taken, we will gladly send you back your money. That's our positive money-back guarantee. You take no chances.

So be fair to yourself. Don't go through life suffering from nagging aches and pains when they are caused by lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron, when relief may be as close at hand as your nearest drug store.

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

There is only one HADACOL. Don't let anyone tell you something else is "just as good". Insist on genuine HADACOL. You risk nothing because HADACOL is sold on a strict money-back guarantee.

Sold at all drug stores. Trial size, $1.25, but buy the large family-size, only $3.50.

THANKS

The Kiwanis Club of Circleville, Ohio, sponsors of the American Cancer Society drive to raise funds for their important life-saving effort in Pickaway County, sincerely thanks the people of Circleville for their liberal response Monday night.

The "Porch Light" canvass was very successful. However, the need is great and urgent, and fearing that possibly some may have been missed, or were not fully informed as to the planned time and procedure, we take this means of informing all that it is NOT TOO LATE to have part in this effort.

Temporary headquarters have been set up at 122 South Court Street, and your contributions will be gladly received there. If not convenient to drop in, just phone No. 155 and we will pick up any donations you care to make. Make checks payable to "Kiwanis Cancer Fund"—and please—DO IT NOW.

Count Turf Wins $5,000 Stake

NEW YORK, June 6—Count Turf established himself today as a strong favorite for the Belmont Stakes on June 16.

The three-year-old Kentucky Derby winner boosted his stock for the $100,000 third leg on racing's triple crown by soundly beating Bold, the Preakness winner, in a three-horse race yesterday at Belmont.

Count Turf, with Conn McCrery in the saddle, won the mile and a sixteenth $5,000 Polynesian by a neck over Combat Boots. Brockmeade's Bold was beaten by eight lengths. Count Turf's time for an off track was 1:42 3-5.

Dozen Regatta Crews Head For Marietta Race

MARIETTA, June 6—The vanguard of a dozen sets of oarsmen arrives tomorrow in this Ohio river city for the 49th Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta on June 16.

Columbia arrives tomorrow, with Washington's Huskies due the next day. Washington made a sweep of the races here last year.

Princeton is slated to arrive Saturday and California, Cornell, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Wisconsin are due Sunday.

Boston university, Navy, Pennsylvania, Stanford and Syracuse complete the entries next week. A fleet of 18 automobiles, each chauffeured by a Marietta college sorority miss, will carry the 600 visiting crewmen on trips around the campus and vicinity.

The races may be viewed from a 42-car observation train, 10,000 bleacher seats on the Ohio side near the finish line, and 5,000 bleacher seats on the West Virginia shore.
